DETAILED ACTION

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: In paragraph 0003, line 7, "torsional" is misspelled. See also paragraph 0004, line 14. In the last line of paragraph 0018, a period should be inserted.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claims 1 and 14 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 1, line 5, "said a receiving" is inconsistent with "at least one" in line 3 of claim 1. Consistency should be maintained throughout the claims with respect to one receiving portion and at least one receiving portion. In claim 14, it is not clear why both cone portions are not capable of defining a cam follower surface. Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 6-11 and 13-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Elliott (092).

Elliott (092) teaches a steering shaft 28 defining a receiving portion notch 62 in a plate member 58, a locking pin 64 having first and second truncated cone portions as seen in fig. 2, wherein the angle of the second truncated cone portion (the rightmost cone portion as seen in fig. 2) is less than the angle of the first cone portion. At least one of the cone portions may be regarded as defining a cam follower surface. The steering shaft 28 and pin 64 are both received in a longitudinal recess, which recesses are parallel to one another.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Elliott (092).

With respect to claims 3 and 4, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize the claimed angle values, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Claims 5 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Elliott (092) in view of White et al (462).

As seen in fig. 4, White et al teaches both truncated portions as being capable of being received in a receiving portion. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the bolt and receiving portion of Elliott (092) such that both cone portions are capable of being received in the receiving portion, in view of the teaching of White et al, the motivation being to provide a strong locking engagement between the two parts.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
